MANY DON'TS THAT DEMAND ATTENTION
By Lizette.

Never demand attention from a man. If you do he will immediately find five thousand reasons why he shouldn't give it. But if he sees that you are not likely to pine away if his attentions cease he will in all probability continue them assiduously. That's because he likes to imagine he controls the situation.

So he does to outward seeming, but very often there's "a man behind the gun" in the person of a wise young woman that the world wots not of.

If a man thinks he's having his own way he is quite likely to offer magnanimously to let you have yours.

Then is the time to be tactful and accept the offer in a becoming spirit.

You can't compel a man to be attentive to you against his will, but you can make him think he wants to be attentive to you.

So many girls make the mistake of insisting that a man should be unfailing in his devotion.

They let him see that they expect a great deal from him.

Just because it is expected he loses the desire for it.

Love will not stand coercion; it must be given spontaneously.

At least that is the case on the man's side. With a woman it is different.

She likes to have demands made on her love.

You rarely hear of a woman being bored by a man's jealousy.

But a man after the first novelty wears off is always bored by a woman's jealousy.

Do not imagine for one moment that I am advising women to meekly sit down and receive with thankfulness any meager attentions a man may be inclined to fling to them.

I consider that a woman cheapens herself quite as much when she demands too much as when she is satisfied with too little.

If a man's interest in a woman is on the wane she can never revive it through demands.

She can only revive it through making herself very charming and somewhat inaccessible.

When she demands his attention she irritates him and widens the breach between them.

The woman he loves may lead him by a silken thread, but if she be wise she will never draw the thread taut.

When a man says "must" to a woman she may outwardly rebel, but in nine out of ten cases she inwardly rejoices. Always provided, of course, that she has some interest in the man.

But no matter how much a man loves a woman he does not relish the word "must" from her lips.

A woman may lead a man, but she never can drive him.

AUTOLOGY APHORISMS.
By E. R. Moras.

It's gotten to be no trick at all to raise thirty-thousand-dollar "pinks" or fifty-thousand-dollar horses, or billion-dollar-trusts—but it still is the toughest proposition in the world to raise anything better than thirty-cent brains. Why? Because: People will learn to feed hogs or cabbages or puppies, but they don't care a darn how they feed their offspring, and still less themselves.

When your stomach rebels or reminds you that something is wrong with your digestion don't think of the pouch inside of your abdomen, but think of the multitude of little vacuoles or stomachs contained in all your organs and tissues as well as of those which exist inside of the pepsin manufacturing cells of the lining mucous membrane of your visible stomach.

It takes air, light, water and foodstuffs to manufacture brains and mind, as it does to manufacture livers and bile, kidneys and urine.

So long as the air which surrounds people is cooked and done up with a view to petting skins or notions, and so long as drinks and foods are chosen to tickle the palate and prepared to snug up waist-bands, so long shall people be able to raise thoroughbred horses, dogs and hogs, and prize-winning fruits and flowers and "taters," but shan't for the life of them be able to raise thoroughbred or pedigreed children or brain-matter.

To avoid any mistake in gaining accurate knowledge of what's wrong with your stomach always think of it inside out, bearing in mind that the blood and lymph which feeds and dumps material into your stomach comes from what you are in the habit of thinking is the outside when really it is the fleshy inside.

The stomach is not a bit particular as to what kind of juice it manufactures. It had just as soon turn out slime or catarrhal or bilious discharge as pepsin or gastric juice.

Do not fancy that you or anybody else can teach your stomach anything. It was made long before you or others began to "think" or mentalize into it. It still knows what it is made for and will keep telling you, with pain and sorrow or ease and pleasure, as long as you feed to please your taste or to make up for your waste.

"CORN WHEAT" A FAKE.

A "corn-wheat" story which was promulgated through the press of the country some weeks ago has awakened widespread inquiry, in this country and abroad.

It has been announced by the Department of Agriculture that the grain which caused these newspaper statements is known correctly as Polish wheat. The heads, ears and grains are very large, the grains in many cases being twice as large as ordinary wheat.

The experiments made by the Department of Agriculture and by experiment stations in a few places show that the yield is rather disappointing. The wheat has been grown only experimentally in this country, except in a few places.

TWO PIANOS, BIG CASH PRIZES FREE!

In this issue will be found on page 9 an advertisement of SUCCESSFUL FARMING, of Des Moines, Iowa, which is one of the best and most successful agricultural papers in the United States. They are making a remarkable offer to our readers of two pianos and some large cash prizes to those who count the dots correctly in the picture of a piano which appears in their advertisement. Full conditions are given and we would suggest that our readers should look this up and go after these prizes. We would be more than pleased if some of these big prizes should be won by readers of our paper, and, while it is not so easy to count these dots as it may seem from first glance, we see no reason why readers of our paper should not be the fortunate ones. SUCCESSFUL FARMING is responsible and refers to every bank and business house in Des Moines and awarding of prizes will be wholly in the hands of disinterested judges, among whom is the Treasurer of the State of Iowa, a Judge of the District Court and a Minister. It would seem this is an opportunity for somebody to get large prizes free. Look up their offer in this issue and get in your counts.
